

I am seriously concerned about the likelihood that Broadband over Power Line will result in extensive interference with other users of the spectrum and oppose the implementation of this new service. Should the FCC decide to go ahead with BPL I strongly encourage that a technological means of tracking the originator of each transmission be required, and that significant financial penalties be attached to any interference with existing frequency usage.